RESOLUTION

A Resolution of the County of Allegheny, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, urging the General Assembly and the United States Congress to push for additional funding for research to discover a cure for life-threatening food allergies.

WHEREAS, more than 12 million Americans currently suffer from food allergies; and

WHEREAS, between 1997 and 2002, the number of children with food allergies doubled in the United States; and

WHEREAS, in the United States alone, food allergies kill as many as 200 people and send 30,000 people to the emergency room each year; and

WHEREAS, the average school has 10 children suffering from severe food allergies; the most common allergens include peanuts, eggs, milk, fish, and wheat, which are nearly impossible to avoid completely at schools; and

WHEREAS, severe food allergies disqualify individuals from military service eligibility and as a result, the growing incidence of food allergies could significantly decrease the pool of qualified candidates to serve in our armed forces; and

WHEREAS, scientists believe that a cure can be found for most allergies by using existing science that has been developed to treat asthma, airborne allergens, and venom from bee stings, and they believe that a cure could be found within a decade; and

WHEREAS, Congress spends less than $10 million annually for allergy research while research for attention deficit disorder receives $107 million a year and research for diabetes receives $1.2 billion a year;
